matthew humphries

Having worked with Ivo for several months in a freelance capacity; it is clear to me his skillset goes beyond just mere programming. As well as being an exceptional programmer, capable of working on multiple platforms with ease, he is also very adept at self-management, client relationships and problem solving. Always courteous, available, and a natural problem solver, he is certainly someone to have in mind for your next project.

I've worked with Ivo on a few projects in the past several years, and I have seen his work on several others. I never cease to be impressed by his ability to seek out and implement a solution and to produce impress code in the process. Ivo works well as part of a team, but can also shine individually as he is self-motivated and requires little management. I would highly recommend Ivo for any challenging project which requires intelligence and insight to solve. Ivo is not your ordinary, average software developer.

Ivo was a very talented person who enabled us to go beyond our original concept and ideas, to expand our final product proposition. He added value where we felt values couldn't have been added. Ivo was a dedicated person who worked until the final results were done.
